

DREAMS COME LATE

Música: Rodrigo Abásolo / Hector Ortin

Lletra: Hector Ortin

Carrying away, losing the faith
Never again I thought it could be the same
Life passed away.
I felt alone, (I) followed the crowd
Blindly just finding the dark

Just one walk to the monastery!

Up in the corner sun shining from west
A shelter waited to change our paths
Noone could know what begun on that day
When light would not turn off
(and) the stake fell again

Loud sounds the howl of an angel
When falls down to the world

Down from the golden haven
The ship that brought anger and pain
Bound the ties of alliance
Until the end.

One hundred voices cried out for
The raise of the gods

Dreams come late
Time makes them raise
And then you wait
Lose your fear of the dark
And face what you have left behind
Look through

I can't believe,
What's the end of this dream?
All young fears
Are all left behind.

A river of tears
The wrath I could feel
Won't tear life apart

Life on the hands
Sorrow on (the) back
Don't care of what's written, it's past
Lead your own fate
And re-write your own path
No fate will rule your life

Diving and hiding
Escaping from hope
Settled the pain in my soul
I lost my heart, I lost control
The roof had no purpose

A kiss to go up, back to the world
Everything's turned to love.

Dreams come late
Time makes them raise
Just what you expect
Don't be ashamed of your wait
That is a rule of life
Look through

I can't believe,
What's the end of this dream?
All young fears
Are all left behind.
A river of tears
The wrath I could feel
Won't tear life apart

Life on the hands
Sorrow on (the) back
Don't care of what's written, it's past
Lead your own fate
And re-write your own path
No fate will rule your life
